WAS WON BY TIME

One of the epic battles of our generation was the bitter fight in the United States Senate over the bill to "pack" the Supreme Court of the United States. All the arguments was not in the Senate. The fight raged up and down the nation. The issue concerned the independence of the nation's courts, and was won by the defenders of the constitution.

Time, that never-failing victor, has won the battle but he "packed" it with Of the members- ship of the court who assumed this week, seven of the nine were appointed by the present President, and an eighth was elevated from an associate justiceship to preside over the court by Mr. Roosevelt's Eight out of nine! And most of them being young men, we are assured a "Roosevelt court" for many years to come.

Teal newspaper was not in favor of "packing" the court at the time the proposal was argued, and now, looking backward, we are glad that the orderly process of democracy prevailed. Time solves more problems than the schemes of man.

GAME WARDENS

The Game Wardens of Virginia seem to be exposed to an open season. They are a favorite target of those who make a pastime of "improving" Virginia government.

We would like to put in our picks for the Game Wardens!

Game Warden, serve a very important function. Where no other officer who could assume the duties of the wardens. Some one made the absurd suggestion but the duties of the game wardens be added to the already under-manned and over-worked State Highway Police force. There is no similarity in the work of the highway patrolman and the game warden. Each is a specialist, in a different type of work. More highway patrolmen are needed ..not to patrol the fields and streams, but to patrol the highways...risks a look at the highway death toll!

Perhaps the major complaint used against the game wardens is their alleged "political activity." We do not approve of any employee neglecting his duties to participate in non-routine activity; but we must defend the right of any citizen to be active in public affairs. We do not know, and we do not believe it has been proved, that as a whole the game wardens fail to discharge their duty because of political activity. Let the "owners with shot-un" rule another scapegoat for a while!

CHRIST OUR SAVIOUR

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 20:25-28; Luke 19:1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.—John 3:16.

"I believe in God, the Father Almighty, . . . and in Jesus Christ His only Son, our Lord . . . I believe in the Holy Ghost." How often we have solemnly repeated these words in the Apostles' Creed, and how appropriate it is that our present three month series of lessons on great Christian teachings should begin last Sunday with a study of God, the Creator and heavenly Father, and continue today with Christ the Saviour, and present next Sunday the Holy Spirit, the Comforter.

These are profound Christian truths, but at the same time they are so simple as to be grasped by the youngest child. Today we have the great privilege of presenting in our classes our Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ. He was

I. The Self-Denying Servant (Matt. 20:25-28).

Scripture clearly teaches that God's standards are not the same as the world's standards, and that His methods of operation are just the opposite of those of the world. All too often Christians and churches imitate the world both in principle and practice, with disastrous results. Consider

1. The False Greatness of the World (v. 25). "Rulers"—"greatness"—"exercise authority"—how altogether up-to-date these words sound. They are the big and swelling words of the small hearts and minds which rule after the manner of this world. They epitomize the ambitions of the great majority of mankind, but they are definitely non-Christian. We see that as we go on to consider

2 The Humility of True Greatness (vv. 26, 27). Service in the spirit of humility and self-sacrifice—this is the standard of Christ. Yes, and it is His command to His followers. To be great for Christ one must become the servant of others. This teaching appears all through Scripture (for example, see Luke 14:11; John 13:13-17; I Pet. 5:5, 6).

How often service in the church is rendered in a spirit of pride, self-glory, and for the commendation and reward of men. When that reward is not forthcoming or some real humbling sacrifice is required, the work is not desired or the worker becomes offended. Here is one of the roots of trouble in the church. Let us put it away as we look upon

3. Christ Our Example (v. 28). He paid the price of our redemption, going to the death of Calvary for us. From the highest glory with He had with the Father (John 17:5), He graciously stooped to deepest humanity as He became sin for us (II Cor. 5:21). Throughout both His life and His death He perfectly represented that self-denying, self-humbling service which He expects of His followers.

II. The Seeking Saviour (Luke 19:1-10).

There is much that is precious and beautiful to be said about our Lord, but perhaps nothing which brings Him so close to needy humanity as the fact that He had "come to seek and to save that which was lost" (v. 10). He was

1. Ever Interested in Sinners (vv. 1-7). Jesus was on this occasion coming up to Jerusalem for the last time. The cross was ahead. He was much taken up with His coming death and greatly straitened in spirit (see Mark 10:32 and Luke 12:50). He was passing through the great and wicked city of Jericho, yet in the midst of His deep sorrow and out of the vast multitude of that city He reached out to touch one sinner.

Zacchaeus was a man despised for his calling of tax collector, and hated for his dishonesty. He was an outcast from his own people and a stranger to God's grace, but Jesus was interested in him. Are we ready thus to go to seek and save the lost? Are we better for busier) than our Lord?

2. Always Able to Save Sinners (vv. 8-10). Zacchaeus was a rich man, but he was a sinner. It is not easy for a rich man to be saved, but it can be done (see Matt. 19:23-26). Read the preceding verses of that chapter (vv. 16-22) and you learn of another rich man who was not saved, the rich young ruler. He was a far better man than Zacchaeus—honest, upright, honored in his community. How was it that the wicked and despised rich man was saved and the good and respected rich man was lost?

The answer is that the former admitted that he was a sinner and thus made it possible for Christ to save him, while the latter loved himself and his gold more than Christ and shut the door against His redeeming love.

School Courses Found at Fault

Survey Finds They Fail to Fit the Pupil to Live in Democratic Society.

NEW YORK.—Ninety per cent of the courses of study now offered in the American public schools are inadequate and do not prepare the students to live in a democratic society, Dr. Herbert B. Bruner of Teachers college charged in a report of a five year investigation.

A staff of research workers and assistants co-operated in the study, which sampled 85,000 courses in use in schools throughout the country.

Only 10 per cent of them have kept pace with the tempo of American life, according to Dr. Bruner. For the most part, the courses have not been changed in a quarter of a century. Such subjects as advertising, housing, consumer education and an improved standard of living have been almost neglected, the report noted.

Overhauling Urged.

A "decided overhauling" of the school curriculum is essential, is the opinion of Dr. Bruner. This is particularly true today, he added, with the emphasis placed upon democratic way of living and the defense program. In examining the courses, the educator found that while Europe was mentioned 15,000 times, South America was referred to fewer than 100 times.

"Much neglected part of our schools are not teaching the kind of things that will enable the children to live in a democratic society," Dr. Bruner said. "The schools deal with academics, topics, which for the most part have not been changed or revised for numbers of years. They have not kept pace with the rapid tempo of present-day society."

A much-neglected field, Dr. Bruner reported, is that of gifted pupils, for whom not a single course is offered. Also there are relatively few courses for the kindergarten.

On the other hand, topics treated at great length in the social science courses are industries, transportation, communication, international and peace relations, education, finance, race problems, production and labor and capital.

Lack Unified View Content.

"One of the major findings emerging from the examination of these courses of study is that there is a great dearth of the kind of new content which is needed in our times," the report observes. "The new material that does appear, however, is for the most part added to current needs, and may be the forerunner of increased volume of similar content in the future."

"Glaring" shortages exist in certain fields, such as science, Dr. Bruner said, where there is "almost no mention of practical science in industry, in the home, or with reference to the consumer."

"The underlying philosophy of many of these courses prevents the content from assuming full significance," he wrote. "For example, the idea that science should remain 'pure' stultifies the social emphasis that might otherwise be present."

"Little Stories for Bedtime" by Thornton W. Burgess

PETER RABBIT PREPARES TO MAKE A CALL

PETER RABBIT washed his face and hands and brushed himself with great care. It was very plain to all that every deliver put in their best clothes in honor of the occasion. Peter, too, came out in his finest clothes and looked, so she felt sure that he had something on his mind, something she didn't know about.

"Where are you going, Peter?" she demanded.

"Over to the Green Forest, just as I do every night," replied Peter, because I am going to do it anyway. Something has got to be done and nobody else seems to be doing anything, so I'm going to. At least I'm going to try."

Then Peter told her all about his adventure with the hunter the day before, and all about the narrow escapes of poor Mrs. Grouse and of his cousin, Jumper the Hare. "Was that hunter Farmer Brown's Boy?" interrupted Mrs. Peter.

"No," replied Peter. "No, it wasn't Farmer Brown's Boy."

"I'm glad of that," said Mrs. Peter softly.

"So am I," replied Peter. "I haven't seen him out once this fall with his terrible gun, and somehow I feel sure that he doesn't want to hunt us any more. I believe Farmer Brown's Boy is our friend and I am sure that if he knew about this other hunter he would stop him. But I guess he doesn't know, so we've got to stop him ourselves or something terrible will happen to some of us one of these days. That is what I am going over to the Green Forest for tonight."

Little Mrs. Peter stared at Peter as if she thought he had quite lost his senses. "Are you crazy, Peter Rabbit?" she demanded. "What under the sun can you do to stop that hunter from hunting?"

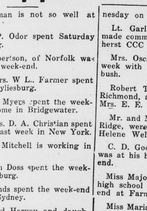
"Nothing," replied Peter. "But Buster Bear can do something. What that hunter needs is to be hunted himself and then he'll know how we feel. There is no one big enough to hunt him but Buster Bear, and so I am going to call on Buster to see if he might be to get him to give that hunter a scare just as he did Farmer Brown's Boy once."

"But you forget that Buster was just as much frightened by Farmer Brown's Boy as Farmer Brown's Boy was by Buster," said Mrs. Peter.

"No, I don't," replied Peter, "but now that he knows that Farmer Brown's Boy ran away from him it isn't likely that Buster will be afraid any more, is it? If he is he hasn't got common sense. Anyway, I'm going to find out."

So off Peter started to call on Buster Bear, and he certainly looked his very best as he made his way through the Green Forest to the deepest, darkest part where Buster Bear lives.

(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)



"Where are you going, Peter?" she demanded.

Brushing away as hard as ever he could.

"H-m-m-m," said Mrs. Peter. "I never have known you to be so fussy about how you look just for a visit to the Green Forest. Whom do you expect to see there?"

Peter looked a little bit confused. The truth is he wasn't quite sure that Mrs. Peter would approve of what he was planning to do, and so he had told her nothing whatever about it. Now there seemed to be but no way out of it. Besides, right down in his heart he wanted to talk it over with someone.

"Are you going to do something you are ashamed of, Peter Rabbit?" demanded Mrs. Peter.

"No," replied Peter, "it isn't anything I am ashamed of. I—I haven't told you because—well, because I was afraid you might think me foolish. But I guess I'll tell you now
